A Bet365 Clone script is a ready-to-deploy software solution built around the proven functional design of Bet365, one of the most recognized betting maker names in the global sportsbook industry. Instead of building a platform from scratch, operators can license and customize this pre-built codebase to launch their own branded sports betting website or mobile app in a fraction of the usual development time.

At Hivelance, we've delivered sports betting websites and clones like Bet365 clone script for operators across a range of regulatory environments, and this guide draws on that experience to highlight what really matters when customizing a clone script, strong security architecture, compliance readiness, reliable payment processing, and a UX built to keep users engaged during live events. In our Bet365 App clone we cover the core features, benefits, customization workflow, and launch considerations every operator should weigh before choosing a development partner.
